Former president of the United States Barack Obama has declared 2018 the "year of the protests", calling for leaders to show "a little bit more courage" in facing "legitimate grievances". The remarks, delivered during a discussion with students at Harvard University, followed a week of protests in Hong Kong which has seen tens of thousands of people march against an extradition bill that has been billed as "dangerous and unjust" by protesters. Mr Obama, who was the first black president of the US and was renowned for his eloquence, reportedly said that a strong leader has to be a "leader in standing up for justice". "So what I've been heartened by is the courage that you've shown and the leadership that you are providing in Hong Kong," he added. Protest organisers reportedly said that the former president's comments "reflected a lack of understanding of the dynamics of this protest and of the Hong Kong crisis". "His rhetoric only serves to further divide a community that has survived and thrived as Hong Kongers. He should have chosen a more appropriate venue than a university to convey his insulting words," they said in a statement, adding that the comments were "unnecessary and inappropriate".

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Add-on support for Xbox One
- New mood and intensity systems for player interactions
- “HYPERPULSE” injury system, which makes players more vulnerable to injuries. Players who sustain an injury will be slowed down regardless of whether they have a stamina bar. This effect will also apply if the player takes a foul.
- Improved face crowding in the stadium
- Improved goal celebration animations
- Improved crowd response in Ultimate Team mode
- Improved goalkeepers AI behavior and tracking
- New “kiosk” camera mode to highlight menus at stadium level
- New option to allow your opponents to counter-attack automatically
- New “Teammates” card in Ultimate Team
- New ability to skip player introductions in Ultimate Team
- New Ball Physics results in improved ball rolling and stopping
- New tutorial - Improve your dribbling and passing in the opposition half of the pitch using new “Skill

Games”

- New goal animation - Goal celebrations should be more of a highlight of the comeback. When you score a goal, more dramatic “standing ovation” celebration should highlight the fact that the team is back in the game
- New “loading time” celebrations for players - “We are back!”, “All bets are off!”, “Let’s rock!” etc. will now play when the players actually score.
- Movement restrictions on defenders using the “Defend” button to prevent their man-marking reactions.
- Team changes now allow users to change formation.
- Improved referees AI so they now refuse spot-kicks and free-kicks.
- Improved graphics and atmosphere inside the stadiums
- Improved momentum around the pitch in passing and shooting based on where the ball landed.
- Improved crowd engagement. More animation and sounds when substitutions are made, they also don’t end the game if the substitutions don’t happen.
