Firmware Version: 25.8L14 Patch Name: 25.8L14-k.The present invention relates generally to the regulation of an electric motor and, in particular, to a system and method of adjusting the speed of the electric motor through the selection of the number of positive or negative pulses in a plurality of pulse trains which are applied to the stator windings of the motor. Prior to the present invention, various methods and apparatus for providing electric motor speed control through the adjustment of pulse frequency were known in the art. Some, such as that disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,567,474 to Carpenter, have had the disadvantage of being costly and limited in their application due to the difficulties in providing relatively precise acceleration and deceleration by changing the pulse number in the pulse train (the relative number of positive and negative pulses of a zero cross pulse train). Other methods and apparatus, such as that disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,662,251 to Jones, required providing two pulse trains, one with the same frequency as the other but the number of positive and negative pulses being unequal, so as to provide a zero cross pulse train. Generally, the systems disclosed in the above identified U.S. patents have been limited in the exactness of their speed control and the number of pulse trains which could be employed. In many prior art systems and methods, including that disclosed in U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,
